

Transportation Methods

Travelling Between Hongkong And Shenzhen

With the two regions being close together, many people move daily between the two. There are multiple ways of traveling between Hong Kong to Shenzhen which include the train, ferry, and bus.

Visa

You'll need a visa. Many people will apply for the visa in their home country prior to travel such as via CVASC if you are in Australia. Visa laws are relatively fluid and changing often, and also vary based on nationality. There are several options for getting a China Visa in Hong Kong before heading over to Shenzhen. Many travel agents will assist with getting a visa, such as CTS, or you can apply to direct to the China Foreign Ministry in Hong Kong, and some visas are issued at the border. There is a short-term 'Shenzhen Visa' which allows you to visit Shenzhen for 5 days, which is available at the border, to some nationalities.
